STILL, THINGS FALL FROM THE SKY

STILL, THINGS FALL FROM THE SKY

Curated by Ciara Ennis

October 22 – December 31, 2005

Opening Reception:

Saturday, October 22, 2005, 7-9 PM

STILL, THINGS FALL FROM THE SKY brings together a group of varied and compelling works by artists working in diverse media in an exhibition dedicated to the immense, limitless, and utterly quotidian subject of the sky and things that fall from it. Embracing frailty and perfection, alongside the utopian and the ideal, STILL, THINGS FALL FROM THE SKY provides a space to author new legends and re-invent the world to one's own specifications.

Curator's Talk:

Thursday, November 3, 2005, 7 PM

Panel Discussion:

Saturday, November 19, 2005, 2-4 PM
