MAK Center for Art & Architecture

Los Angeles, CA, USA

Los Angeles based photographer Amir Zaki renders southern California suburban landscapes and architecture as fantastical and impossible architectonic structures. "Spring Through Winter" presents his investigations into the entropy of architecture in a suite of photographs of exterior cantilevered architecture, aerial perspective swimming pools, and interior fireplaces. While committed to the mundane, the work is subtle and disorienting, transforming architecture into ineffectual relics. Originally modernist homes that have been refaced and restructured due to multiple earthquakes, renovations, or redecoration, the artist's interventions become sculpturally dynamic, dramatic, and dystopic.
